

Bms in the battery pack

Overview

What is battery management system (BMS)?

Battery Management System (BMS) is the “intelligent manager” of modern battery packs, widely used in fields such as electric vehicles, energy storage stations, and consumer electronics.

How does a BMS protect a battery pack?

Monitoring battery pack current and cell or module voltages is the road to electrical protection. The electrical SOA of any battery cell is bound by current and voltage. Figure 1 illustrates a typical lithium-ion cell SOA, and a well-designed BMS will protect the pack by preventing operation outside the manufacturer’s cell ratings.

How do battery management systems work?

Battery management system (BMS) is technology dedicated to the oversight of a battery pack, which is an assembly of battery cells, electrically organized in a row x column matrix configuration to enable delivery of targeted range of voltage and current for a duration of time against expected load scenarios.

Why do batteries need a BMS?

The BMS helps batteries last longer too. It balances cells so weaker ones don’t limit the pack’s performance or get damaged faster. By stopping deep discharge and overcharge, it protects against common causes of permanent capacity loss. Lithium-ion batteries need precise control. Most lithium cells work between 10.5V and 14.8V.
