Overview

What is base station Power?

Base station power refers to the output power level of base stations, which is defined by specific maximum limits (24 dBm for Local Area base stations and 20 dBm for Home base stations) and includes tolerances for deviation from declared power levels, as well as specifications for total power control dynamic range. How useful is this definition?

How much power does a base station have?

Maximum base station power is limited to 38 dBm output power for Medium-Range base stations, 24 dBm output power for Local Area base stations, and to 20 dBm for Home base stations. This power is defined per antenna and carrier, except for home base stations, where the power over all antennas (up to four) is counted.

What is a base station?

The base station is a transceiver and acts as an interface between a mobile station and network using microwave radio communication. It consist of three part elements: one or more transceivers, several antenna mounted on a tower or building, power system, and air conditioning equipment.

What is a solar-powered base station?

A solar-powered base station as shown in Fig. 5.14 consists of a PV powering unit, a base station and a cooling unit. The base station uses radio signals to connect devices to network as a part of traditional cellular telephone network and solar powering unit is used to power it.
