Overview

---

What is Portugal's energy supply?

In 2019, fossil fuels accounted for 76% of Portugal's total energy supply (TES).<sup>1</sup> Portugal has no production of crude oil, natural gas or coal and relies entirely on imports for these energy sources. Domestic energy production comes primarily from bioenergy (direct use and electricity generation) and generation from wind and hydro (Figure 2.2).

Does Portugal have a power supply sector?

On a global scale, Portugal's power supply sector is part of the European Union's broader energy goals, emphasizing sustainability and energy independence. Engaging with local stakeholders and understanding market dynamics can enhance opportunities for collaboration and growth within the industry.

Does Portugal have a green energy policy?

Portugal has made significant strides towards renewable energy, with wind and solar power being substantial components of its energy mix. Understanding the regulatory framework is essential, as the government supports green energy initiatives through various incentives and policies.
