

Solar assembly panels

Overview

How are solar panels made?

The process starts with extrusion, where aluminum is pushed through a die to create the bracket's shape. This method allows for intricate profiles and adjustable features. The brackets are designed to accommodate the specific dimensions and angle requirements of the solar panels.

What is the manufacturing process of solar panels?

Solar Cells Manufacturing 4. Panel Assembly 5. Testing and Quality Assurance
The manufacturing process of solar panels primarily involves silicon cell production, panel assembly, and quality assurance.

Where are solar panels made?

Based in Tajpur, Sabarkantha, Gujarat, the company manufactures both monocrystalline and polycrystalline solar panels at its 25,375-square-meter, 200 MW-capacity manufacturing facility. The distinction between these lies in their solar cell composition, affecting efficiency and appearance.
